

Corbett Kroehler

Mr. Sustainable

Corbett Kroehler is recognised worldwide as an expert on global warming and green issues. Corbett has worked closely with a number of initiatives to develop practical uses of green energy sources. As a partner in the Interstate Traveler Company, Corbett currently is currently working on a project to develop the world's first solar-powered magnetic-levitation high-speed rail system. Corbett was asked to ascend to the top leadership role of Central Florida Sierra Club group chairman for 2006, a function which he served with distinction. He is now working to expand the Green Earth Expo beyond Orlando and adding multimedia channels to his widely-read Climate Crisis Blog.

“Leading expert on solar energy initiatives and sustainability”

In detail

After graduating from Full Sail Center for the Recording Arts in 1990, Corbett turned to the fast growing computer field. In 1998, he began work with one of the largest banks in the United States, specializing in desktop publishing, project management and web development.

What he offers you

Corbett has broad knowledge of environmental and green issues, especially about the threats and opportunities which global warming poses to the entire world. In his presentations he raises awareness about renewable energy and sustainability as well as opportunities for innovation, market leadership, branding and green investing.

How he presents

Corbett advises decision makers on future trends in an informative and thought provoking manner. Passion is undisputedly one of his strengths. His inspirational presentations are both well researched and convincing.

Languages

He presents in English and Spanish.
